

Please, Mr. Panda

Fun Activities and Book Suggestions for Families

Geography:

Mapping

Working with your child, make a list of the animals in the story. Find out where they live in the wild. If you have a map, plot their locations on it.

Science:

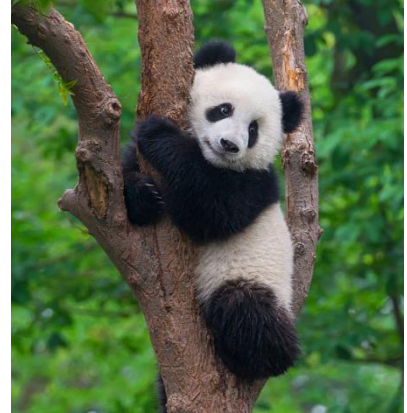

Research

Learn about pandas. Where do they live? What do they eat?

All About Pandas for Kids, a great video with beautiful images:

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=VNxx8jVEm3I>

Live Panda Cam: <https://nationalzoo.si.edu/webcams/panda-cam>

Math & Manners:

Partner Play

Provide a spinner or dice, bowls, and counters (pom-poms, Cheerios, coins, etc.). Each player has an empty bowl. Place the counters in a bowl between them. One player spins the spinner or rolls a die and asks the other player for that many items: "May I have 3 pom-poms please?" The other player counts out three and places them into their partner's bowl. The player receiving says "Thank you"; the giver says "You're welcome." If someone forgets to use their manners, they do not get pom-poms.

Fun with Food:

Donut Sandwich

Make a donut sandwich using bread (or a bagel) and sprinkles and your choice of filling. Your child can practice counting when adding the sprinkles to their "donut." They can also practice identifying colors.

If you and your child enjoyed reading Please, Mr. Panda, be sure to check out these books too:

- Panda Kindergarten by Joanne Ryder
- The Donut Chef by Bob Staake
- Say Please by Virginia Austin